RURAL LIFE DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Gettysburg will Have Notable Array of Educators to Address Public Meeting in the Court House, April Fifteenth.

An innovation is announced for Adams County in the observance of April 15 as Agricultural and Rural Life Day. The event is to be purely local and is not in connection with any other movement. It is primarily in the interest of promoting the community life idea, and morning and afternoon sessions will be held in the Court House to which every one is invited. Speakers will be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, from the State Department of Agriculture, and from Pennsylvania State College, all of whom will be specialists in their various lines. The best plans to be followed in the raising of various fruits and vegetables, the ideas of the domestic science courses, and many other things will be taken up which should prove of the greatest interest to the people of the county.

Of special concern to the Boys' and Girls' Agricultural and Domestic Science Leagues will be the discussions of corn and potato growing, cooking and so on. The meeting will come just about the time of year when they will be starting on this work, and it is desired that the discussions shall arouse enthusiasm and secure more entrants than ever before in the annual contests. All of the plans are in the hands of County Superintendent Roth.

Prof. Roth has a busy calendar now for the schools of the county. On Saturday there were held the district spelling matches to select those who shall appear at the county contest later on. Next Saturday the central examinations will be held; April first, the county spelling contest; April 2, the final examinations; and April 15, the Agricultural and Rural Life Day observance.

SEMINARIAN CHOSEN

Young Minister Unanimous Choice of Two Congregations.

Rev. E. Clinton Ritz, a student at the seminary, was unanimously elected on Sunday to the pastorate of the Salem Lutheran church, York County, to succeed Rev. Dr. A. G. Fastnacht. Largely attended congregational meetings and elections were held following the regular services at Strayer's church and at Red Run church, which constitute the charge. In both instances the election of Rev. Mr. Ritz was unanimous.

Dr. A. G. Fastnacht was elected chairman at both meetings to conduct the election. Whether or not the newly elected pastor will accept the call is not known. It is understood that he has received a call from Schuylkill Haven. The call, which was prepared and signed by the joint councils after the services, will be extended immediately. The resignation of Dr. Fastnacht will take effect on June 1.

CLAIM THE PEACH CROP IS RUINED

Freezing Weather of Last Week Completed Damage Commenced Earlier in the Season. Trouble in County Orchards.

"I believe I am safe in asserting that there will not be as many peaches in some South Mountain orchards, this year, as there were bushels that went to waste, last summer." This was the disturbing prediction that a well known fruit grower made to-day. The cold weather of a few weeks ago very severely damaged the peaches on the low land all through that section. The high-land orchards, however, were not affected and there was held forth the hope that there had been left a sufficient number of buds to yield a big crop this year.

Last week the orchards that escaped a month ago, were visited with destruction, according to a number of growers. There was snow for an entire day and this clung to the peach buds. Before the sun had become warm enough to dry up the snow and the water that found lodging in the buds, the severely cold weather of Thursday night spread itself over the country and the snow and water were frozen to ice and the buds were killed.

Peach Grower Heyser, of Greencastle, states that his orchard of 70 acres of peach trees has been nearly ruined. He can not find more than one bud in every six that had life in it. He recently visited the big Smithsburg orchards and found the Elbertas frozen and he believes the extremely cold weather of the last part of this week has killed the remainder.

Paul Morganthall, in charge of the Blue Mountain orchards along the foot of the mountain, north of Rouzerville, reports that on the lower section of the orchards nearly all the peach, cherry and other buds have been frozen. On the higher ground the loss is not so bad, possibly not over fifty per cent.

The conditions which prevail in the South Mountain orchards are said to be duplicated here. C. Arthur Griest, one of the largest and most extensive peach growers in Adams County, said this morning that he had not gone through his orchards since the freeze of the latter part of last week to make a careful examination, but as believed that it had just about finished the prospects for a crop of any size.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Young People Attend Church Service and Hear Special Sermon.

The members of the Camp Fire Girls, Blue Birds, and Boy Scouts of town attended the services in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening and occupied pews reserved for them. A large American flag was carried in advance of the young people as they entered the church in a body and all recited their pledge of allegiance before being seated. The sermon was preached by Rev. F. E. Taylor who based his remarks on "The Law of the Camp Fire."

The musical numbers of the evening included songs by the young people, an anthem by the choir, and a mandolin solo by Mr. White. "America" closed the service which was held in celebration of the national Camp Fire Girls' fifth anniversary.

WITH THE TROOPS PURSUING VILLA

Captain Rutherford has not been Heard from for Several Weeks. Has Relatives and Friends in this County.

Captain Samuel McPherson Rutherford, a cousin of Mrs. S. Gray Biggam, of Biglerville, is in command of a company in the Tenth regiment cavalry, United States army, which is now believed to be pursuing Villa. Relatives and friends in this section feel much concern as no word has been received from him for several weeks. He is a son of J. E. Rutherford, of Lochiel Farm, near Harrisburg, and a brother of Robert M. Rutherford, president of the Steelton National Bank.

For the past two years, Captain Rutherford has been stationed at Fort Huachuca, Texas, and when the order for mobilization was sent from Washington his regiment was ordered to the border. He is believed to be with the troops pursuing Villa. He was graduated from West Point in 1889.

Captain Rutherford has a number of friends in this section who will be eager to learn of the part he will play in the present activities in the disturbed republic south of the border.

SHORTAGE

Wheat and Rye Crops are Under Average According to Report.

Pennsylvania's wheat and rye show indications of being only about ninety four per cent of the average condition at this time of the year according to reports made to the Statistical Bureau of the State Department of Agriculture. The acreage devoted to wheat is about one per cent greater than last year and rye is about the same. Weather is blamed for the backward condition.

Estimates made to the department are that twenty five per cent of the wheat crop of 1915, or 6,232,000 bushels, remains in the hands of the farmers.

More time is being used on fields in this State now than for years, due to the shortage of the foreign potash supply. Seventy eight per cent of the farmers are using commercial fertilizer, a decline of ten per cent, the use last year being 235 pounds per acre.

OUR APOLOGIES

To All Concerned for Saturday's Make-Up Blunder.

Many are the disastrous things that can happen when "types" go astray, and The Times was the unfortunate victim of one of these occasions Saturday evening. Through a death and wedding notice becoming mixed in the make-up of the forms, our readers were given the startling information that the notice of a marriage would be accepted "as an announcement of the funeral service." To Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Glass our most humble apologies are extended, while to our readers generally we wish to express appreciation of their good natured indulgence.

ONE DISCHARGED

Other Two Boys Must Answer to Charge Preferred against them.

Before Squire Sell on Saturday the case was heard of the Commonwealth vs. the three Adams County boys, Clayton Scholl, Francis Heist and Eugene Sipling, charged on oath of Hayes Myers, merchant of Midway, with felonious entry, larceny, and receiving stolen goods. Scholl and Heist were held for the April court. Scholl entered bail and Heist was re-committed to jail. There was no evidence sufficient to implicate Sipling, and he was discharged.

Troopers, After marching 110 Miles Into Mexico, Learn Hiding Place of Outlaws.

El Paso, Tex., March 20.—Villa has reached Babicora, near the lake of that name in the Guerrero region, more than a hundred miles south of Casas Grandes after having abandoned thirty miles of his wounded at El Valle, according to a telegram received by General Gaviro at Juarez, from Colonel Nieto Mascias, the commander at Pearson.

After marching more than 110 miles into Mexico, in forty-two hours, the American punitive expedition received information apparently locating Pancho Villa, the object of their chase.

Disposition of the troops began for the task of hunting him down. Meanwhile Villa was reported continuing his outrages upon Americans.

The expedition reached (name deleted by censor). They were informed that the Mexican leader passed through this place only a few days ago. The latest information of Villa's present whereabouts placed him on the ranch of Candelario Hernandez, one of the sub-chiefs, with him on the raid against Columbus.

General John J. Pershing personally led the flying cavalry column in the 110-mile dash. Every man in his command was mounted. They pressed through a section of Mexico where water was scarce.

For such a large body of men the speed maintained was remarkable, and the good condition in which they came through was inspiring.

Only a few cavalry horses and pack mules were lost, the victims of a hard-riden trail. The men reached the camp thirsty and hungry, but otherwise in good condition, fit for action and eager for the pursuit of Villa to begin in earnest. Here they were met with reports that Villa had raided the American colonies in the vicinity of his mountain retreats and that he had killed residents of these colonies.

Enrico Visconti, an Italian subject and one of the best known foreign ranchers in Mexico, was murdered by Mexican bandits on his ranch at Encinillas, Chihuahua, last Tuesday. News of the murder reached El Paso in a telegram sent by Vincenzo Visconti, brother of the murdered man.

The telegram was sent from Presidio by Wenceslas Garcia, a brother of the foreman of the ranch. The foreman escaped when Visconti was murdered, and made his way safely to Ojinaga where he communicated with Wenceslas.

Visconti's ranch was 75,000 acres in extent and located one hundred miles south of Ojinaga and an equal distance east of Chihuahua City. The bandits who murdered him seized his cousin, Juan Bilbao, a Spaniard, on his ranch sixty miles southwest of Encinillas, a week previously and held him for $1500 ransom, which was paid from El Paso.

GERMAN SEAPLANES SHELL EAST KENT

Nine Killed, 31 Injured in British Towns.

London, March 20.—The war office issued the following statement:

"Four German seaplanes bombed East Kent. The first pair appeared over Dover, flying at a height of between 5000 to 6000 feet. One machine dropped six bombs on the harbor and then went northwest, throwing bombs on the town. The other, after passing over Dover, appeared over Deal and dropped several bombs. A second pair bombed Ramsgate. One went west and the other north pursued by a British aeroplane. One machine dropped bombs on Margate. A second appeared over Westgate, where our aeroplanes pursued it. No bombs were dropped.

"The casualties so far are: Nine killed and thirty-one injured. As far as can be ascertained, 488 bombs were dropped. One bomb fell on the Canadian hospital at Ramsgate, causing damage but no casualties. Material damage was done to several houses. Flight Commander Bone, in a single seater aeroplane, pursued the raider for thirty miles over the sea, where after an action lasting a quarter of an hour the raider was forced to descend. The observer was killed."

Salem, N. J., March 20.—Edward A. Bailey, the Carney's Point powder works guard charged with assault and battery upon Earl Kline, will be given a hearing before Justice Smith here this afternoon, and there promises to be a lively legal battle.

Persons arrested by the guards at the powder plants have been taken to a private guard house on the DuPont property and detained there until a justice of the peace came down from Pennsgrove to hold a hearing at what is called the "court house," this too, being on DuPont property.

It is alleged that Major Clark, in charge of the DuPont guards, has been warned by officials of Salem county that neither he nor his men has any authority to detain a man in a private guard house until the pleasure of a justice to hold a hearing.

7 AEROPLANES SHOT DOWN

Greatest Air Battle of War is Fought in Alsace.

FRENCH LOSE 4 MACHINES

German Crown Prince Defeated Again in Desperate Attacks to Capture Fort Vaux and Break through at Damloup.

Paris, March 20.—Battling with machine guns high in the air, German and French warplane squadrons in Alsace have fought the most spectacular air battle of the war.

Seven French and German aeroplanes were shot down, two of the flying machines engaging in a fight to the death until they riddled each other with machine gun bullets and went down to the ground together.

Before the battle the French had dropped seventy-two bombs on the German aviation camp at Habsheim and had shelled the railroad station at Mulhouse, doing great damage in both places. Twenty-three French aeroplanes participated in the raid.

Another French squadron from Verdun also made a raid on the German fortress of Metz, dropping twenty bombs on the railroad station and shelling the German balloon camp there. The aeroplanes also bombarded the ammunition depot at Chateau Salins and the aerodrome at Dieuze.

A French aviator also destroyed a German aeroplane in an air duel in the Verdun region, bringing the hostile aircraft to the ground just inside the French lines.

The aerial battles followed another attempt of the German crown prince to smash the French defenses at Fort Vaux. As with previous attacks, this was beaten back with great loss to the German infantry.

The war office statement says: "East of the Meuse, after a violent bombardment, the enemy directed a somewhat spirited attack against the Vaux-Damloup front. He was driven back by our curtain of fire, his attack failing completely. During the night there was no action on the part of the enemy infantry.

"The activity of the artillery has been intermittent in all sectors in the region of Verdun. On the front as a whole the night was calm.

In the Verdun region one of our aeroplanes brought down a German machine which landed within our lines near Mont Seville.

"Five of our double motor aeroplanes bombarded the German balloon station at Metz, the ammunition depots near Chateau Salins and the aerodrome at Dieuze. Thirty shells of large calibre were dropped during the course of this expedition, of which twenty fell on the station at Metz.

"One of our groups of bombing aeroplanes, composed of twenty-three machines, dropped seventy-two shells on the aviation camp at Habsheim and the freight station at Mulhouse. Enemy aeroplanes pursuing our air men engaged them in an aerial battle during which one French machine and one German machine were forced to descend by their reciprocal machine-gun fire. Two other German aeroplanes fell in flames, and three of our machines were seriously damaged and obliged to descend in enemy territory."

2 MOTHERS AND 3 CHILDREN DIE BY GAS

Father in Each Case Finds Family Lifeless.

New York, March 20.—Two fathers, one in Manhattan and the other in Brooklyn, returning to their homes after having worked all night, found their wives and children dead from gas.

The victims in Manhattan were Mrs. Teresa Backstetter, twenty-six years old; her daughter, Teresa, eight years old, and her son, Lawrence, one year old, who were killed by illuminating gas in their apartment at 175 East 101st street.

In the Brooklyn tragedy the dead are Mrs. Ann Quary, thirty-seven years old, and her son, James, four years old, of 438 Herkimer street. In both cases the bodies of the children were found cuddled up in bed with their mothers.

It was one o'clock when Lawrence Backstetter reached his apartment. The odor of gas was stifling. Alarmed, he ran into his wife's bedroom and there saw Mrs. Backstetter and the two children in bed. Backstetter threw open the window and, running back to the bed, tried to arouse his wife. He was unable to do so. He shook the children, but they did not move either.

In the Brooklyn asphyxiation case, Mrs. Quary and her little son were found lifeless in bed by the woman's husband, Patrick. There was a gas heater in the room, but it was not lighted and the gas was escaping.

MUSKRAT SEASON POOR

Catch in Delaware Much Lower Than Former Years.

Dover, Del., March 20.—The muskrat season, which closed on March 15, was less profitable in lower Delaware than in former years.

But what was lost in the number of the catch has been more than made up in prices received for both the meat and the hides. Last year the furs brought only eighteen cents a piece, while this season's average has been from thirty to thirty-three cents. Some sales have been reported at forty cents.

The best sales of hides are made by the trappers, who have marshes near the bay shore. The rats caught along this shore are mostly of the black hide variety and are more valuable for coats, collars, muffs and neck pieces as well as driving gloves.

Only one otter was caught this season by the trappers in central Delaware. The fur sold for $15. Only one mink has been reported this season.

Rockefeller Fund Gifts $16,862,147.
New York, March 20.—The General Education board, founded by John D. Rockefeller, shortly will issue its complete annual report for the fiscal year 1914-1915. The first installment of that report shows that since its organization and up to June 30, 1915, the board had appropriated directly $16,862,147. Of this amount $10,848,984 had been paid out, and $6,014,963 was awaiting requisition.

TUESDAY EVENING

Rare Treat Awaiting those who Hear Noted Lecturer.

Seumas MacManus, the author of "Donegal Fairy Stories," "The Lad of the O'Fries," and more than a dozen other books will take us on a "Merry Ramble 'Round Ireland" at Xavier Hall, Tuesday, March 21st.

With more than 100 beautifully colored stereoscopic views he will show the two kinds of beauties of which the Emerald Isle boasts, viz: the beauties of the landscape and the beauties of the landscape—those Irish beauties that tread with dainty feet so lightly that the daisies hardly bend a leaf. The pictures and stories that go with the "Ramble 'Round Ireland," which Mr. MacManus promises, will give a fair idea of Ireland and her inhabitants when they are at home.

It is a talk full of Irish atmosphere, lit up with Irish ballad gems, and studded with stories of Irish wit that keep the audience in a continuous roar of laughter. It displays in a striking manner Irish life in the fields and by the fireside, at work and at play, at Mass and market, and the humor and pathos which Mr. MacManus injects into his stories leave a longing on the heart of those who hear him, for stories of a similar kind.—advertisement

SENATE SLOW IN GETTING TO WORK

Takes Day or Two to Begin Discussion of Measures.

POLITICS IN THE DEBATES.

Senator Borah Sees a Dismal Outlook Ahead and Predicts Dire Things for the Country—He Chides Democrats About Differences of Opinion Existing Among Them.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, March 20.—(Special.)—When the senate is trying to clear the atmosphere and get itself ready for work it nearly always develops some humorous situations. Such was the case when the body deliberated for a day whether or not it should take up and consider a bill which has little possibility of ever becoming a law.

Every senator who wanted to talk had his say, and much of what he said had something peculiar in it. Every man talked with great earnestness, and yet one could not but think there was a lack of sincerity, a purpose of politics and criticism, a vein of sarcasm, so delicate as to be almost unrecognizable, but introduced in the running debate for the purpose of showing the inconsistencies of men and the differences of opinions over all pending measures.

The Dismal Outlook. Formerly it was Senator Hale who took the dark and gloomy view of conditions because the senate did not do what he wanted it to do. Senator Borah of Idaho has taken his place as the dismal outlook man. He sees us going on the rocks constantly. There is no silver cloud in the lining. Everything we have been doing is wrong and what we propose to do is worse.

Of course Borah does not mean it all. He likes to chide the Democrats for their lack of cohesive methods and to point out the differences existing among them. And then, of course, he uses that delicate sarcasm I have mentioned. Borah never forgets and constantly reminds the Democrats that the awful conditions which were asked to be the president on his western trip have not been corrected and no certainty shown in trying to give the president the army which he said was so necessary.

Democratic Helpers. Borah has aids on the Democratic side. There are critics who do not hesitate to show that everything is going wrong. Newsdays of Nevada constantly points out the lack of cooperation and co-ordination in every government matter. He has been especially severe in his criticism of the method regarding preparedness and says that four or five different committees have been appointed to study each in a different direction and in its own way instead of having an comprehensive plan prepared by experts. Then there is Underwood of Alabama. He is chiefly concerned because the session is slipping away and no business transacted. He wants the business of the congress pushed along so that there may be an adjournment some time during the fall.

What They Will Do. In the course of time, after wasting many hours of daylight in useless talk, both houses will sit at night and work and slave to make up for lost time. That is always the way with statesmen and congress.

Defined by Clark. Senator Clark of Wyoming in a few words defined the differences that exist between the two legislatures over the water-power bill. "One insists that the government owns and controls the water, and the other insists that the government neither owns nor controls the water," is the way he put it.

Of course there are a great many ramifications. The present status is that wherever the government owns the lands adjacent to water power sites it has withdrawn the lands, and the sites cannot be used without the consent of the government. The western men say the states own the water and will consent to no legislation which will give the government control of the water. And there is the deadlock.

Bad Outlook For Rural Credits. In the last congress Senator McCumber of North Dakota attached a rural credits rider to the agricultural appropriation bill. The way to have secured legislation on that subject was for the house to adopt it, but it did not. It was eliminated. Now there has been proposed a rural credits bill, but McCumber says that it is obnoxious to the farmers of the northwest and of no use to them unless it is materially changed. So the prospects are that a rural credits measure will have a great deal of difficulty in passing at this session.

Why the Philippine Delay? For four or five years there has been no more persistent advocate of legislation looking to the freedom of the Philippines than Chairman Jones of the house insular committee, but the senate bill which insured Philippine independence has been held back for a long time, and no one seems to know whether the house will take it up in time to secure its becoming a law this session. No reason is given for the delay.

Destroying Bad Eggs. Millions of bad eggs are seized every year in London, and the way they are destroyed is to tip them out of their cases and run a steam roller over them.

Book for Household Hints.

A separate book should be kept for household hints. These, too, should be placed in alphabetical order. If the housewife pursues this policy she will find her scrap book a great aid and comfort, for she can turn to it when ever necessary with the assurance that the desired knowledge will all ways be there.

When a Book Is Worth Something

No book is worth anything which is not worth much; nor is it serviceable, until it has been read, and reread, and loved, and loved again, and marked, so that you can refer to the passage you want in it as a soldier can seize his needs in an armory, or a housewife bring the spice she needs from her store.—John Ruskin.

Pretty Package.

A pot of jam sent to a sick friend was doubly acceptable because of its dainty wrappings. It was inclosed in dark green crepe paper tied with red and green silk threads. Round the neck of the jar the paper stood up in a high frill, and rising above the frill were several leaflike bits of crimson paper, giving the effect of a bright flower among foliage.

Example Counts for Much.

Example has more followers than reason. We unconsciously imitate the characters we most admire. A generous habit of thought and action arises with it an incalculable influence. Bovee.

LOFTY ACOMA.

Strange Indian Village Perched High Up In the Air.

Perched on the top of a great rock in the neighborhood of 300 feet high stands Acoma, in New Mexico, in some respects the strangest village in this country. Acoma is an Indian settlement of some 600 people and means "the people of the rock." Though the founding of the village is lost in the mist of antiquity, it is supposed the Acoma Indians chose this site as a measure of safety against the warlike Apaches and Navajos of their day. Their selection was made with admirable judgment, for the walls of the rock are almost perpendicular.

The earliest Spanish explorers found the tribe settled securely in their natural fortalice. Acoma has remained delightfully untouched by the influence of Spanish and American civilization. These Indians are quite well to do in sheep and cattle, which are pastured on the grazing lands of the valley where summer villages are located and where the minimum of effort is required to care for the flocks and herds. Although less than twenty miles from a railroad, the village is comparatively unknown.

The natives do not care for curious visitors. They do not wish to be stared at and photographed. Nevertheless the irresistible tourist with his camera occasionally scales the steep that baffled the Navajo. Nowadays it is no longer practicable to suppress him with a tomahawk, so the Acoma are philosophically making the best of a bad job by collecting $2 a day for a camera license. The gray adobe village peers from its rocky nook of gray plain, dancing in the glare of a burning sun broken only by the sheer outlines of buttes and mesas.—Argosmith.

The Cherokee Tributes Stone.

There are, of course, stairs running up the inside of the Washington monument, but few people walk up the stairs. Of course there are stones set in the wall by different states that are well worth the climb, but at sunset time the majority of folk think that it is better to ride. There is so much to see in our capital and feet are only feet. As the elevator crawls up one sees the New York stone, the Ohio stone, the Kansas stone and many others. One sees a blurred stone labeled "The Cherokee Nation." Somehow that stone depresses a few people, for the white man has done little for his Indian brother in return for his land, his game, his dying race—his memorial stone.—Margaret E. Manchester, Jr., in Christian Herald.

Races of Mankind.

Authorities differ greatly in the classification of the races of mankind. Cuvier makes three races: British, Celtic; Agassiz, eight, and Pickering, eleven. But the classification most commonly accepted is that into five races as made by Blumenbach, as follows: The Caucasian, European or white race; the Mongolian, Asiatic or yellow race; the Ethiopian, African or black race; the American Indian or red race; the Malay or brown race.

(Medical Advertising) WEAK FROM GRIPPE

"I am a Home Missionary, was weak and run-down after a hard spell of LaGrippe. I had headaches, indigestion and pains in my chest, and was tired all the time. A friend asked me to try Vinol and the result is I am free from those troubles and I feel well and strong and able to go to work again." Mrs. Hattie Johnson, Towanda, Pa.

The reason Vinol was so successful in building up Mrs. Johnson's health is because it is a constitutional remedy which contains a potentate of iron to enrich and revitalize the blood, the nourishing properties of beef peptone and the healing medicinal extracts of fresh, healthy cod's livers, all combined in a delicious native tonic wine, without oil.

We wish every person in Gettysburg, who is suffering from a weakened, run-down, debilitated condition, would try our Vinol. Our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit them.

(Medical Advertising) SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-Time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A ROYAL MYSTERY

THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK.

Who the Unfortunate Prisoner Was Has Never Been Disclosed, and When He Died His Body Was Destroyed by Chemicals in His Casket.

A famous state mystery of the reign of Louis XIV. of France was the mysterious prisoner, the Man in the Iron Mask. Many are the guesses which have been ventured as to who he was. Plays and novels have been written with the iron mask as the central character, but his identity has remained a secret. It is known without doubt that St. Mars during his life had as a prisoner a man whose face always was covered with a mask of black velvet fastened by springs of steel behind the head.

The guards had orders to kill the man if he ever exposed his face, and St. Mars' own life depended on nobody finding out who his prisoner was. His first prison was the castle of Pignerol. When St. Mars was transferred to the island of St. Marguerite, the king himself told the jailer to take his prisoner with him and cautioned him not to let him speak to any one, even his guards.

On the night of April 29, 1674, a close-lipped officer escorted by a troop of horsemen, stopped at a house, some leagues from Lyons. From the litter descended a young man of slim and active figure, his face hidden by a mask and his hands firmly tied, in which state he lay down on a couch prepared before hand. Next day ten horsemen arrived with sealed orders to convey the prisoner with the utmost secrecy to the fortress of Pignerol. So it was the Man in the Iron Mask began his twenty-nine years of captivity under the impassive, silent, remorseless St. Mars.

Several years later the man of the mask was seen again when St. Mars was transferred to St. Marguerite. This time troops surrounded a chair covered with waxed cloth. The travelers stopped at an inn for supper. The more daring of the curious peasants peered through a small window from outside the locked supper room. The prisoner sat with his back to the window, and they could not tell whether he had on his mask. St. Mars sat opposite him with a pistol on each side of his plate.

This prisoner was the subject of much correspondence between St. Mars and Louis XIV. of France. Louis continually was asking about him. He gave full instructions as to the care of the man, and about the cell he was to occupy the king wrote:

"Let there be so many doors closed one after the other that the sentinels cannot hear a word, and you will never hear anything he has to say on any pretext whatever. Threaten him with death if he ever opens his mouth to speak of anything but of what he may be allowed to want of."

The blindly obedient St. Mars followed his instructions carefully. The doctor who waited on the prisoner said he had never seen his face, although he had examined his tongue. Dishes and plates were examined each time the prisoner was served to see if there was any writing on them. The guards always were ready to kill the moment he took off his mask.

In other respects the greatest attention was shown him, and nothing which he requested was refused. He always was dressed in black. St. Mars himself stood uncovered in his presence and remained standing until the prisoner had requested him to be seated. The jailer often took his meals with the prisoner.

Just who was the Man in the Iron Mask? Some thought he was an illegitimate son of Anne of Austria. Others said he was a twin brother of Louis XIV., whose claims might have deprived the king of his throne. Another writer makes him the leader of an association which was formed to assassinate the ruler. The most general belief is that he was Count Mattioli, first minister of the Duke of Mantua, who had betrayed the interests of Louis XIV. by failing to secure for him, as he had pledged himself to do in consideration for a bribe, possession of the fortress of Casale from his master, Louis XIV. knew the secret, but to all questions replied that if it was known who the prisoner was every one would be surprised to find him so uninteresting a person.

The prisoner died after a short illness in 1703. He was buried one autumn day, and his body was placed in the prison register as "M. de Marchiel." Fifty years later the frenzied citizens of Paris broke into the Bastille, and rushed to the cell where it was known he had been kept. They stopped short before clean white-washed walls. Nothing was in the room. The prisoner's clothes and the mask had been burned when he died. Chemicals had been put in his casket to destroy the body. Only one man had seen the face behind the iron mask during the twenty-nine years. He was St. Mars. And St. Mars never told. — Kansas City Times.

Few Fires in Carlsbad.
Carlsbad by law requires all buildings to be as nearly fireproof as possible, with the result that the city's firemen earn most of their wages as chimney sweeps.

A Transfusion

By EUNICE FLAKE

George Dobbins enlisted in London for the pan-European war, went to the front and was severely wounded. He moved to a hospital in rear of the fighting lines, he lingered between life and death. His family were wealthy and willing to spend any amount of money to insure his recovery. An effort was made to secure the services of a surgeon to go to Belgium and give his special attention to pulling through the son and brother. Every surgeon in England who had not gone to the front had more than he could do at home. Miss Amelia Dobbins, George's sister, was engaged to an investigator in the British institution for physical investigation. She begged him to go with her to her brother, and the appeal coming from the woman he loved won him over.

When a man's mind is running in a given line it is difficult to divert it. Stephen Blake had for some time been investigating the subject of transfusion of blood. He had not only been successful in operations of the kind, but had begun to endeavor to search for results according to different kinds of blood injected into different kinds of animals. He had replaced the blood of a man with that of an orang outang, and the patient had developed a propensity to climb trees. A liberal and benevolent gentleman, who had received the blood of a miser had become a skinflint. These and other cases had convinced the investigator that racial peculiarities are in the blood.

As soon as Dr. Blake saw his patient, who was much emaciated and very pale, he said that he needed blood and must have blood at once or he would die. It is not every one who will give his or her blood for another, and the person who was willing to give his blood for George Dobbins did not appear. His sister volunteered, and since she was a hearty young woman, the doctor did not oppose the necessity of her offer. He had every confidence that she would assume no great risk. But to supply the blood lost by Miss Dobbins some one must supply a part of his for her supply. A young soldier who was struck with Miss Dobbins volunteered, and the operation was performed, the blood the lady gave her brother being made up to her by Charlie Hopkins.

Not long after the transfusion fever was heard at the front, and to the surprise of all Miss Dobbins rushed from the front and, approaching the front line from the rear, seized a musket from a wounded man and, joining the colors, fought bravely. The troops, surrounded at seeing a woman fighting beside them, rallied around her and under her leadership attacked the Germans in the line of the trenches so vigorously that they drove them off. When the fight was over Miss Dobbins was decorated on the field.

Only Dr. Blake attributed Miss Dobbins' bravery, so unusual in a woman, to an special cause. He made inquiries as to Charlie Hopkins and learned that he was one of the bravest men in the army. The doctor was confirmed in his theory that the blood is the basis of all the different traits that flesh is heir to.

George Dobbins, after having received his sister's blood, improved rapidly and in time returned to the colors. He had enlisted as a private, but was soon promoted to be lieutenant on account of his coolness in face of the enemy. What was the astonishment of his comrades when at the first fight in which he took part after his return to the front he killed, killed and killed. He was recommended by his commanding officer and informed that he must be tried for cowardice. He begged for a chance to redeem himself, asserting that the cause of his death was that he had not sufficiently recovered from his recent confinement to stand up under fire. He was given the desired opportunity and returned to his command. But when a dash was made on the German trenches the next week over them while Dobbins' head again carried his unwilling self to the rear.

This time a court martial was convened to try him. News of his disgrace went to England, and Dr. Blake, hearing of it, called upon George's father and announced his belief that the transfusion of blood from a woman had given his son a woman's constitutional inability to bear arms.

So great was the likeness between George and Amelia that when both wore the same kind of garments they could not well be told apart. George, at the sister's suggestion, feigned illness and was taken to a hospital, from whence his sister spirited him away to the coast and sent him home in a woman's dress as herself. Then she appeared as George Dobbins for some especially hazardous duty to redeem the lost reputation. It was granted. She stole into the enemy's lines, fired an ammunition receptacle, destroyed it and got back safely to the British lines.

An order was issued that the court martial convened to try Lieutenant George Dobbins for cowardice be dismissed, and Lieutenant Dobbins was promoted for gallant and meritorious service in the destruction of enemy's ammunition.

LEGEND OF THE DONKEY.

In his article on his journey to Babylon, in Harper's, William Warfield tells a legend prevailing among the natives by which they justify beating of donkeys, but not horses.

"We stopped to change our mules. In the roadway before the Khan sat a group of Arabs. A servant supplied them with little cups of tea from a rude squire. We saluted them, and, taking our places in the circle, we were served in turn. Some one in the dark doorway was thumping away on a drum. A boy came out of the Khan beating a poor lame donkey with fly infested sores. I turned to one of my neighbors.

"Is it not cruel for that boy to beat a lame donkey in that way?"

"Effendi, it is the will of God."

"But you do not allow horses or camels to be beaten thus."

"Effendi, the donkey is not like the horse, nor yet is he like the camel. The reason is this: Upon a certain day the donkeys went before Allah and complained that they were grievously beaten by men, so that life was a greater burden than they could bear. Then said Allah: 'I cannot make man cease from beating you. It is no sin, neither does it cause them any great loss. But I will help you. I will give you so thick a hide that, however much you are beaten, you shall not suffer.'"

"So," said my informant, "it is of no consequence if men beat a donkey. So thick a skin did Allah give him that after he dies men use it in the making of drums, and the donkey continues to be beaten after death."

HUSBAND SHOT TO DEATH BY WIFE

FIRE 12 BULLETS AT HIM

Frederick, Md., March 20.—Arthur English, New York attorney and prominent alumnus of New York University, was killed by his wife in a revolver battle at their home in the Catocin mountains, near here.

After being out just long enough to draft a decision, the coroner's jury brought in a verdict that English had been killed by his wife in self-defense, and "we, therefore, exonerate her."

A fusillade, in which twelve shots were fired, was the climax to a quarrel in which the wife insisted that her four-year-old son should not be permitted to chop wood.

Five shots struck English, who, his wife said, attacked her with a hammer and then tried to shoot her.

The tragedy was witnessed by the six-year-old daughter of the couple. It brought to a close a romance which united two prominent families in an engagement to Philadelphia and secret marriage on December 6, 1910.

Arthur English was the son of Thomas Dunn English, noted poet and author of "Ben Bolt," and alumnus of University of Pennsylvania. He was a native of New York city, where for years following his graduation he practiced.

His wife, formerly Eloise Young, a member of one of Frederick's oldest families, is the daughter of the late McClintock Young, noted for his many inventions.

It was generally known that their married life was very unhappy. They separated and were reconciled several times. Neighbors say that English treated his wife miserably, that recently he was virtually insane, threatening many times to take her life.

The two sons were put to work by the father, chopping wood. Knowing that the elder boy was not well, Mrs. English went out and asked that he be allowed to stop. English flew into a rage, she said.

Greatly frightened by his threats and by his savage manner, she went to her room where she got a pistol which formerly belonged to her father. She tucked this in her bosom and proceeded about her household duties.

Shortly afterward English went in to the dining room where his wife was. In a fury he took a hammer, broke furniture and smashed chinaware. His wife begged him to stop, but this only seemed to make him worse.

When again importuned to desist, he threatened to "finish her." As he raised his arm Mrs. English drew her revolver and fired.

She emptied the five chambers of her pistol, then picked up his revolver from the floor and fired all seven shots at him. Then, hysterical, after she had shot twelve times, she ran up stairs and reloaded her own pistol again.

An examination of English's body showed that five bullets had taken effect in it. Two penetrated the abdomen. One went through his side. One passed through his heart, another had shattered his jaw.

THOMAS IRON CHIEF OUT

Easton, Pa., March 20.—Ralph H. Sweetser, the three years president of the Thomas Iron company, which has a number of furnaces in eastern Pennsylvania, and rich ore mines in this state, and in New Jersey, has tendered his resignation, to take effect July 1.

Liquor Men Would Silence Congress.

More Pay for Machinists in South.

WAR ORDERS BOOM SCHWAB

Bethlehem Corporation Employs Over 15,500 Persons.

New York, March 20.—The extent to which war orders have increased the business of the Bethlehem Steel company is strikingly shown in the pamphlet report of the company.

This shows that at the close of 1915 the company employed 22,064 persons to whom it paid wages of $21,800,664, compared with 15,586 employees who earned $14,312,948 in 1914.

The orders on hand amounted to $175,432,895 at the end of 1915, as compared with $46,513,189 at the end of 1914. These operations resulted in net earnings of $2,821,408, as compared with $9,649,667 the previous year. The net income, after allowing for interest, depreciation, amortization, etc., shows a still more striking gain, the figures for 1915 being $17,762,812, against $5,590,020 in 1914.

In commenting on conditions in the trade Chairman Schwab refers to the bill in congress providing for a $11,000,000 armor plant with a capacity of 20,000 tons, double the actual requirements of the company for twenty years, and declared that the company had endeavored to meet the government desire for cheaper armor plate by offering to make it for $30 a ton less than the price now obtaining.

GAS IMPERILS 14; WOMAN TO RESCUE

Gives Telephone Alarm and Falls Unconscious.

Philadelphia, March 20.—The courage of Mrs. Mary Ithell, sixty years old, of 1826 South Fifteenth street, probably saved fourteen persons from death and many more from serious illness when gas from a leaking street main flooded the houses on the west side of south Fifteenth street, between Moore and Mifflin streets.

Mrs. Ithell reached a telephone downstairs only to collapse from her illness and the gas before she was able to complete calling a number, but a telephone operator traced the call and brought the police to the block.

The speed with which the work was done made it necessary for only four persons to be taken to St. Agnes hospital. The others recovered in fresh air.

Mrs. Ithell is just recovering from illness. So restless that she slept only at intervals, she awoke to find an overpowering odor of gas in her bedroom on the second floor. She started for the telephone. Dragging her weakened body out of the bed toward the stairs at the bottom of which the instrument rested upon a table.

The gas grew thicker as the woman groped her way down the steps, clutching the balustrade. She fell twice but each time gathered her strength for another effort. She reached for the telephone as she came to the bottom of the flight and lifting the receiver started to call a number.

"Dickinson —" she gasped with her last particle of energy. And then unable to complete the number succumbed to the gas and fell with the telephone in her hand.

The operator in the Dickinson exchange heard the click of the instrument when the receiver was lifted off the hook and her car caught the words broken by the fall and the noise of the fall.

Fearing a tragedy, she traced the neighborhood of the call and flashed a message to the Fifteenth street and Snyder avenue police station. The patrol hurried to the scene with a squad of policemen and they began to rouse the neighborhood.

Turn From Whiskey to War. Lexington, Ky., March 20.—With announcement of the sale at Midway, Ky., of one of the largest distilleries in that section of Kentucky, to Cincinnati and Louisville interests, it became known that this plant and three others of Kentucky's leading manufacturers of whiskey would cease taking liquor and devote their energies to making alcohol to fill orders for export to European nations engaged in the war. The other distilleries are located near Lexington.

Orchids Worth $25,000 in Ashes.

Collingdale, Pa., March 20.—Twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of rare orchids were destroyed by fire or exposure after the fire, when the greenhouses of A. Pericat were destroyed.

THE DAIRYMAN.

Give the young bull more wheat bran than cornmeal if you want to develop him as a good sire. Feed more for muscular development than for fat.

Get the box stalls ready for the cows that are to calve in the early spring.

Remember that the cow needs some extra protection in cold weather. Feed plenty of succulent fodder.

Remember the calves, the nature for the soil and the skim-milk for the hogs.

WHAT IS PROFITABLE MILK PRODUCTION?

The amount of milk or butter fat a cow should give in a year in order to prove profitable cannot be answered unless the cost of production and the selling price are known, says Howard's Dairyman. On the whole, however, a cow that produces an average of 200 pounds of fat in a year will yield a modest profit if properly cared for and if the prices for her product are not below normal. The amount of milk a cow should give in order to produce 200 pounds of fat will be found by dividing this fat production by the average fat per cent of her milk. For instance, a cow producing 5 per cent milk should give 4,000 pounds of milk in order to produce 200 pounds of fat.

In giving this average production of 200 pounds of fat, however, we would

Red Poll cattle are considered as belonging to the dual purpose breeds. An admirer of the Red Poll cow says that she requires little more feed than the Jersey, will keep in condition on a cheap and rough ration as the Holstein and gives more milk than the Jersey. The milk is much richer in butter fat than Holstein milk, and in addition the Red Poll from calfhood to old age is always ready for the butcher. The cow shown is a Red Poll.

add that this is perhaps the low limit and does not offer the opportunity for a large measure of profit. The ideal should be to have the herd average 250 pounds of fat, and as this ideal becomes realized the ideal of a higher production should be set.

According to all experimental work that has been done, fat cannot be fed into milk. This accords with the experience of observing and careful dairymen. It is, of course, possible to increase or decrease the fat per cent of the milk for a short time by creating some disturbance in the animal's digestion by improper feeding or by some other method, either intentional or otherwise. However, this change in fat per cent will continue for a short time only, and the cow will have to return to her normal. It is also possible to bring cows up to freshening time in a somewhat fat condition, and they will for a time maintain a high fat percentage in their milk. As in the previous case, this fat percentage will not be maintained, and the cow will drop back to what is her normal percentage of fat.

The milk of each individual cow seems to possess a fixed composition that is natural to her, and under normal conditions the richness of the milk is in no way dependent upon the care or amount of feed fed, except that cows that are served or greatly underfed may produce milk somewhat lower in fat percentage than normal. One is quite sure in saying that the kind of feed fed will not either raise or lower the average fat per cent of a cow, neither will it bring in and of itself, temporary fluctuation in the fat per cent.

Sun Always Shining on America.

It is not only on the British empire that the sun never sets. It never sets on American soil. When it is 6 p. m. at Atto Island, Alaska, it is 9:36 a. m. the next day on the eastern coast of Maine.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

The Candy Corner.

PEPPERMINT. One and one-half cupsful sugar, one half cupful boiling water, six drops oil of peppermint. Put sugar and water into granite saucepan and stir until dissolved. Boil ten minutes; be sure it really boils; remove from fire, add peppermint, and beat till smooth enough to drop from tip of spoon on wax paper. Get some of the vegetable colors sold in grocery stores and color some of these a light green; flavor some others with rose and color pink.

The small jars of coloring are handy, and will make your candies look quite professional.

Molasses Candy. Two cupsful Porto Rico molasses, two-thirds cupful sugar, three tablespoonfuls butter, one tablespoonful vinegar.

Put butter in kettle, place over fire, and when melted add molasses and sugar; boil and stir until, when tried in cold water, mixture becomes brittle; add vinegar just before taking from the fire. Pour into well buttered pans. Pull when cool enough to handle; cut into pieces with large shears and place on buttered plates till cool, then wrap each piece in paraffin paper.

Puffed Rice Brittle. This is another wholesome candy relished by every one—crisp the rice in the oven before using. One cupful of granulated sugar, one half cupful of water. Boil together five minutes; add two tablespoonfuls of molasses, butter size of walnut, half a teaspoonful of salt. Boil until it bubbles in cold water. Take from fire and stir in one half package puffed rice. Pour into buttered pans.

Another advantage of making these candies at home is the inexpensiveness of them as compared with the rich candies one buys, often made of inferior materials. The pleasure you will find in making the candy for your family, or in having some members of the family help you make it, will add to the satisfaction.

Malted Milk Fudge. One-half can condensed milk, two-thirds cupful of water, one tablespoonful of butter, three heaping tablespoonfuls of malted milk, two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla, two ounces of unsweetened chocolate.

Boil ten minutes, stirring continually while cooking. After removing from the fire stir until mixture begins to thicken. Pour in a shallow dish, previously buttered, to harden. Omit chocolate if you wish a plain vanilla fudge.

Easy Way to Use Liniments. Put the liniment in an atomizer, such as is used for perfumes, and when needed to use just squirt the liniment on the affected parts and rub with the tip ends of the fingers. I have tried this for some time and find it not only very convenient, but it is a great saving of the liniment.

Many Denominations Worship In One Church

One of the most unique institutions for public worship in Pennsylvania stands on the grounds of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Mont Alto. It is the Gilbert Memorial Chapel, erected by Mrs. Fannie Gilbert Dixon, wife of the State Commissioner of Health, in memory of her father. This handsome structure was presented to the Commonwealth some few years ago and formally accepted with a resolution of thanks by the General Assembly.

It is used by all of the various religious denominations represented among the eleven hundred and fifty patients and three hundred employees at the Great State Sanatoria. It is without the emblem of any denomination throughout its decoration and architecture. Thus it is acceptable to all as a place of worship and is in every sense of the word a union chapel. More than a dozen different religions and denominations are represented among the various congregations which use it as a place of worship and few, if any, communities of this size are so free from religious dissensions as is Mont Alto.

DOMESTIC BLISS.

Shown in the Confessions of a Happily Married Man.

It takes my wife a long time to read anything. I skim whole pages instantly. She hates to be read aloud to. I love it.

When we travel I always suggest to her in advance the car we shall take. She agrees, but will suddenly change her mind and insist upon taking another one. I grumble to myself and obey. She likes the top of the auto up. I loathe it up. It remains up.

I always praise her golf, no matter how badly she plays. She always deprecates mine, no matter how well I play. When I criticize anything she does I don't say it; I think it. That sometimes makes trouble enough.

I compliment her occasionally before others. She pretends that she doesn't understand why I do it.

When I buy a new suit she will never admit that she admires it until it is worn out. Then she says the next one isn't half so becoming as the last. When she gets a new gown I admire it intensely until it is about time to replace it with another. She never liked any hat that I have ever bought. I like every one of hers—on principle.

I laugh at her when she gets too serious. When I get too serious she scolds me.

I keep her informed about my business only when she asks me. She never asks me, so you know the result.

I tell her a funny story every day. If I have two I keep one for the next day. Sometimes she laughs at them.

She asks me occasionally if I think her hair is as long as it was. I always tell her it is longer.

I hate bridge, dinner parties, dancing and the opera. She respects my opinion and makes me do them all.

She makes out checks and forgets to enter them on the stubs. Every time I catch her in this omission she reminds me of the celebrated occasion when I left the tickets to a large theater party in my other suit.

She always keeps her temper when I lose mine. I keep mine when she loses hers.

Once told her she was thoroughly spoiled. She kissed me and said she knew it.—Life.

INCOME TAX IS $100,000,000

Probable Collection $15,000,000 More Than Estimated Last Fall.

Washington, March 20.—The income tax will place in the United States treasury this year approximately $19,000,000 or $15,000,000 more than was estimated last fall, according to preliminary statistics compiled by the internal revenue bureau.

Returns last year were about $20,000,000 and the new figure is a record. The estimates, which cover only individual and corporate returns, are based on telegraphic reports from virtually all revenue districts. So far $19,484,000 has been collected.
